THE LITTLE BROWN TENT.

Summer's approach is marked in one way by the little tents that dot the shores of river and lake. Their number will increase steadily until September, when the greater demands of business will compel their removal to journey homeward. Cold nights affect some campers just as they affect the foliage of the trees, though the autumn months are glorious for life in the open.

A complete change has come over these campers in their demand for shelter. No longer is the white tent of history in vogue. The demand today is for anything but white. Although green is believed to be restful to the eyes, and not a few green tents are used, brown is the favorite. Brown is hardly the word, however, but it will serve, since it is most used in this connection. Dead grass color is nearer the average, so variable are the shades attainable by the makers of cotton duck, no two bolts of which are exactly alike.

So many useful articles are now made for the short-trip camper that his entire outfit need not equal half his own weight. And there are so many places where it is pleasant to adjourn for a few days that the little brown tent holds up in the most unexpected places—on mountain tops, along the seashore, or beside the trout stream—Forest and Stream.

WAR TAX LONG AFTER WAR

Beveridge Says People Pay It on Tobacco

DEALERS PAY MUCH LESS

Than in Other Countries—He Points to Trust's Enormous Profits—Amendment to Give Government $21,000,000 Revenue.

Washington, June 25.—Declaring that the American tobacco company had been the recipient of many millions of dollars which otherwise would have gone into the national treasury because of the failure of the government to require a change in the size of tobacco packages when the war revenue law was repealed, Senator Beveridge yesterday spoke at length in support of his amendment to the tariff bill correcting this omission. He declared that if adopted his amendment would give the government more than $21,000,000 of revenue and correct the wrong which the people had suffered for eight years.

"When," he said, "the tariff bill came from the House to the Senate it increased the tax on the cigarettes—a poor, miserable increase—yet the finance committee of the Senate actually has struck this 'little' increase on cigarettes."

Mr. Beveridge asserted that the American tax on tobacco is only a fraction of the tax of most other civilized nations. Stating that the annual consumption of tobacco in this country amounts to five and a half pounds for every man, woman and child, he said that if we taxed tobacco at the same rate as is imposed by England and France we would every year derive $333,346,666 instead of less than $50,000,000 as at present. Furthermore he asserted that the tobacco tax is now lower than at any previous time except for a few years prior to 1898.

Quoting from a report by the department of commerce and labor on the profits of the tobacco trust, which report Mr. Aldrich said had been brought to the attention of the Senate by the president, Mr. Beveridge said that the consumer had been required to pay the increased tax of 1898, and he conceded that this was right. "But," he said, "when the war was over and the added war tax was taken off, instead of reducing the price to the consumer, the manufacturers continued it, and this was wrong. In other words," he continued, "the manufacturers kept on collecting the war tax after it had been taken off, and instead of paying it to the government, he paid it to himself."

Mr. Beveridge then traced the origin and growth of the American tobacco company and stated that, including the corporations which it controls and corporations which it formed, the entire net capitalization amounts to about $17,000,000, most of which he declared to be water. He said the profits in 1906 were almost $37,000,000. Mr. Beveridge declared the greater proportion of the proposed tax would fall upon the trust, which, he declared, is bitterly resisting the adoption of his amendment.

A Thrilling Rescue.

How Bert R. Lean of Cheney, Wash., was saved from a frightful death is a story to thrill the world. "A hard cold," he writes, "brought on a desperate lung trouble that baffled an expert doctor here. Then I paid $10 to $15 a visit to a lung specialist in Spokane, who did not help me. Then I went to California, but without benefit. At last I used Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me, and now I am as well as ever."

For lung trouble, bronchitis, coughs and colds, asthma, croup and whooping cough it's supreme. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Red Cross Pharmacy.
